Topic: "Victimization of Women: Myths and the Way Forward"

Objective of the Program:

International Human Rights Day commemorates the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, fostering global awareness, advocacy, and solidarity toward upholding the inherent dignity and rights of every individual. It serves as a poignant reminder to champion equality, justice, and freedoms for all, acknowledging progress made and persisting challenges, while honouring the efforts of activists and organizations committed to safeguarding human rights worldwide.

Outline of the Program:

The speaker elaborated about the topic in contemporary way by explaining victimization of women remains a global challenge perpetuated by myths and misconceptions that hinder progress toward equality and justice. One prevalent myth is victim-blaming, where societal attitudes unfairly place responsibility on women for the violence or discrimination they face. This misconception often leads to minimizing the seriousness of the issue and inhibits survivors from seeking support or justice. Another myth involves the belief that women provoke violence through their behaviour or attire, disregarding the fundamental right to safety regardless of one's actions or appearance. These myths not only perpetuate harmful stereotypes but also contribute to a culture that normalizes and justifies mistreatment, thereby exacerbating the plight of women facing various forms of victimization.

Addressing these issues necessitates a multifaceted approach. First, education and awareness campaigns are crucial to debunking myths and fostering a more empathetic and informed understanding of the challenges women encounter. Empowering women through education and economic opportunities can also significantly reduce vulnerabilities. Additionally, stringent legal frameworks, along with effective implementation and enforcement, are essential to ensure accountability for perpetrators and protect women's rights. Cultivating a culture of respect, equality, and support is fundamental in paving the way forward toward a world where women are free from victimization and discrimination.

The speaker gave various examples to the students and tried to make the session interactive with the students. The session ended with reciting of Preamble of Constitution by all the students.

SANDIP UNIVERSITY NASHIK 422213

Collaborate with relevant organizations, disseminate inspirational stories, and contribute to the global effort for gender equality, ultimately striving to create a more inclusive and equitable society through the combined power of film and open discussions.

About the event: Gender equality is a fundamental human right and a cornerstone of social justice. Despite progress in recent decades, disparities and discrimination based on gender continue to persist. To address these challenges and inspire positive change, a session was organized that employed the powerful tools of cinema and open dialogue. The event featured the screening of a short film, "Breaking Barriers: A Journey to Equality," followed by a group discussion.

Film Screening: The short film "Breaking Barriers: A Journey to Equality" was thoughtfully selected for its compelling storytelling and thematic focus on women's empowerment and the dismantling of gender stereotypes. This film shares the inspiring real-life journeys of women who have overcome adversity to excel in diverse fields.

Group Discussion: Immediately following the screening, an expert in gender equality led a group discussion. Participants were encouraged to share their thoughts, experiences, and insights on the film's themes and gender equality in general. The discussion aimed to challenge stereotypes, broaden perspectives, and inspire participants to take action.

Conclusion & Remarks: The integration of a short film screening and group discussion proved to be a powerful approach for addressing gender equality issues. By sharing the inspirational journeys of women who have broken barriers and fostering open dialogue, the session successfully challenged stereotypes and broadened perspectives. It encouraged participants to take action and become advocates for gender equality in their respective spheres.

This initiative aligns with global efforts, particularly United Nations Sustainable Development Goal 5: "Gender Equality." It reaffirms that the combination of cinema and open discussions has the potential to transform attitudes and behaviors related to gender equality, contributing to a more inclusive and equitable society. To continue this momentum, it is essential to organize similar events, empower individuals, and foster lasting change on the path to true gender equality.
