ANTI-RAGGING POLICY

1. Preamble:

In accordance with the directives of the Honorable Supreme Court and the guidelines provided by the Central Government and the University Grants Commission (UGC), SCHOOL OF PHARMACEUTICAL SCIENCES, SANDIP UNIVERSITY has taken definitive steps to prevent and eliminate the practice of ragging. Recognizing the importance of the overall wellbeing of students, the institution prioritizes both their physical and psychological development. Therefore, a strict Anti-Ragging Policy has been formulated. The Vice Chancellor is responsible for enforcing this policy but may appoint a Nodal Officer or Chairperson to oversee anti-ragging activities and ensure proper implementation across the institution.

2. Objectives:

The fundamental aim of this policy is to completely prohibit, prevent, and eradicate any form of ragging. Ragging is recognized as a harmful practice that can lead to severe consequences for students, and this policy serves as a mechanism to safeguard student welfare and ensure a secure environment conducive to learning.

3. Definition of Ragging:

Ragging constitutes one or more of the following acts:

- Verbal or written misconduct: Any behavior by one or more students that involves teasing, mocking, or harassing another student through words or actions, causing psychological or emotional distress.
- Rowdy behavior: Unruly conduct that disrupts the peace, causes physical harm, or induces fear or anxiety in another student.
- Coercion: Forcing a student to engage in activities they would not usually perform, leading to feelings of shame, embarrassment, or emotional or physical harm.
- Obstruction of academic activities: Hindering the academic progress of another student, particularly freshmen, by creating unnecessary disruptions.
- Extortion: Demanding financial contributions or imposing unreasonable financial burdens on another student.
- Physical abuse: Acts that involve physical assault, including sexual misconduct, inappropriate gestures, or threatening the health or safety of another student. This includes both direct physical abuse and verbal abuse through inappropriate comments, emails, or public insults that cause humiliation.
- Mental health impact: Any action that undermines the mental health or self-confidence of a student, particularly freshmen, regardless of whether it was intended to derive pleasure or assert superiority.

students to participate in discussions and activities that foster a sense of community. Antiragging campaigns and sensitization workshops must be held regularly to ensure that all students understand the serious consequences of ragging and the institution's zero-tolerance stance towards it.

5. Preventative Measures

The institution will take several proactive steps to prevent ragging, including but not limited to:

- Clear communication: All admission brochures, instructions, and prospectuses will explicitly state that ragging is prohibited. Students found guilty of ragging will face disciplinary action in accordance with the institution's rules and legal penalties.
- Emergency contact details: Students will be provided with key contact numbers for the Anti-Ragging Helpline and institutional officials, including members of the Anti-Ragging Committee.
- Accommodation monitoring: The institution will monitor the accommodation of new students (freshmen) closely, with the presence of wardens, security personnel, and other staff to ensure their safety.
- Meetings and preparedness: Before the academic year begins, the Vice Chancellor will convene a meeting with hostel wardens, faculty, student representatives, and local authorities to discuss preventative measures and strategies for addressing potential ragging incidents.
- Public awareness: Posters displaying anti-ragging regulations and the relevant legal consequences will be prominently placed across campus, including in hostels and common areas, to ensure students are aware of the severity of ragging-related offenses.
- Increased security: Areas prone to ragging incidents will be identified and closely monitored with enhanced security, especially during vulnerable times, such as the beginning of the academic year.
- Professional counseling: The institution will engage professional counselors to provide psychological support to students, particularly freshmen, both before and after the start of the academic session.
- Joint orientation programs: The institution will organize orientation sessions that involve both freshmen and senior students. These programs will include professional counseling, cultural and sports activities, and interactions with faculty to foster positive relationships between students.

6. Reporting and Safeguards

Students who are victims or witnesses of ragging incidents are encouraged to report these occurrences without fear of retaliation. The identity of those reporting incidents will be kept confidential to protect them from any negative consequences for speaking out.

7. Action by University Officials

Upon receiving a report or recommendation from the Anti-Ragging Committee regarding an incident of ragging, the Vice Chancellor will assess whether the matter warrants legal action. If deemed necessary, the institution will file a First Information Report (FIR) with local law enforcement authorities within 24 hours. The FIR will address various aspects of ragging, such as:

- Instigating or engaging in ragging.
- Participating in unlawful gatherings or causing public disruptions.
- Committing physical, psychological, or sexual assault.
- Extortion or criminal intimidation.
- Any form of criminal activity related to ragging.

The institution will also conduct its own internal inquiry into the matter and take corrective measures without waiting for law enforcement to act. These measures will be completed within seven days to one month, depending on the nature of the incident.

8. Disciplinary Actions

If a student is found guilty of ragging, they will face one or more of the following disciplinary actions:

- Temporary suspension from classes and academic privileges.
- Revocation of scholarships, fellowships, or other academic benefits.
- Exclusion from examinations and other evaluation processes.
- Expulsion from hostels or dormitories.
- Cancellation of admission or expulsion from the institution.
- Prohibition from representing the institution at national or international events.
- Imposition of a fine of up to INR 2.5 lakh.

In cases where those responsible for ragging cannot be identified, the institution may impose collective punishment.

9. Accountability of Faculty and Staff

If any faculty or staff member is found to have neglected their duty to report or act on a ragging incident, they may face disciplinary action. This applies to those who fail to take appropriate steps to prevent ragging or show insensitivity toward student complaints. If the Vice Chancellor is found to have neglected these responsibilities, the appointing authority will take appropriate actions10. Review and Monitoring

The institution's Board of Management will periodically review and assess the effectiveness of the Anti-Ragging Policy to ensure it continues to meet its objectives. The policy will be evaluated regularly to ensure its relevance and effectiveness in eliminating ragging.

This policy is approved on 17/08/2017.
